The attorneys of GSLLP are skilled litigators with years of experience at all levels of federal and state court. GSLLP is based in San Francisco, California, and has office addresses in Seattle, Washington and Boulder, Colorado. Members of the firm are licensed to practice in California, Texas, Colorado, New York, Massachusetts, Oregon, Washington, and the District of Columbia.

As described in detail below, GSLLP attorneys have represented consumers and small businesses in appeals to the Ninth Circuit (Section A), have obtained important victories on legal issues at the district court level (Section B), achieved settlements in class action cases to make available to class members over $500 million in cash and other settlement benefits (Section C), and have won praise from numerous judges (Section D). As shown in the individual attorney biographies, GSLLP attorneys have strong academic credentials and extensive experience litigating complex cases (Section E). GSLLP has been appointed as class counsel in over a dozen cases (Appendix A) and is currently counsel for plaintiffs in many other cases asserting class claims that have not yet been certified in both federal and state court (Appendix B).

A. Key Appellate Cases

- McArdle v. AT&T Mobility LLC, et al.*, 772 F. App'x 575, No. 17-17246 (9th Cir. June 28, 2019) (certiorari denied June 1, 2020)

The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our client, affirming the district court order that invalidated AT&T's arbitration agreement, pursuant to McGill v. Citibank, N.A., 2 Cal. 5th 945 (2017), because the provision contained a public injunctive relief waiver. The Ninth Circuit held that the Federal Arbitration Act did not preempt California's McGill rule and that AT&T's arbitration agreement was null and void in its entirety.

- Davidson v. Kimberly-Clark Corp.*, 873 F.3d 1103 (9th Cir. 2017)

The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our client, reversing the district court. It held that our client had Article III standing to seek injunctive relief regarding the false labeling of "flushable wipes," even though she was already on notice of the misrepresentation. This ruling resolved a split among the district courts. The en banc petition was denied.

- Just Film, Inc. v. Buono*, 847 F.3d 1108 (9th Cir. 2017)

The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our client, affirming the district court order certifying two nationwide classes of small business owners defrauded in a scheme that involved equipment leases and credit card processing services. The Ninth Circuit upheld certification despite differences between claims of named plaintiffs and certain absent class members and even though assessment of damages would require individual inquiry.

- Just Film, Inc. v. Merch. Servs., Inc.*, 474 F. App'x 493 (9th Cir. 2012)

The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our client, affirming a district court's order issuing a preliminary injunction prior to class certification, to prevent further collection activities in connection with equipment leases. The Ninth Circuit held that the district court "did not abuse its discretion by finding sufficient evidence to support its preliminary injunction, which was carefully tailored to maintain the status quo where class certification is pending and the plaintiff has shown that a class-wide injunction is necessary to remedy the alleged class-wide harm."

- Stearns v. Ticketmaster Corp.*, 655 F.3d 1013 (9th Cir. 2011)

The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our clients, reversing district court orders that had dismissed certain claims and denied class certification on other claims. The Ninth Circuit held that our clients had pled viable claims that they were deceived into registering for a coupon program with a paid monthly subscription by a website “click through” and that the defendant was liable to all consumers, even those who may have wanted to enroll. The Court held that a showing of class-wide reliance was not required for certification of a UCL claim and established the standard that “California has created what amounts to a conclusive presumption that when a defendant puts out tainted bait and a person sees it and bites, the defendant has caused an injury; restitution is the remedy.”

- Chavez v. Blue Sky Nat. Bev. Co.*, 340 F. App’x 359 (9th Cir. 2009)
The Ninth Circuit ruled in favor of our client, reversing a district court order that had dismissed a case involving soda labeling. The Ninth Circuit recognized the “benefit of the bargain” theory for standing in consumer class actions and held that plaintiff stated a claim based on his allegations that “he purchased beverages that he otherwise would not have purchased in absence of the alleged misrepresentations [and] lost the purchase price, or part thereof, that he paid for those beverages.” After the case was remanded, it was eventually certified and became one of the first food and beverage labeling cases certified in the Northern District of California. Chavez v. Blue Sky Natural Beverage Co., 268 F.R.D. 365 (N.D.Cal. 2010) (certifying nationwide class).

B. Selection of Important District Court Cases

- Dismissal of Anticompetitive Claims Against Small Business Owners.
GSLLP represented Veronica Foods, a small local distributor of “Ultra-Premium” olive oils, in a lawsuit filed by the North American Olive Oil Association, representing large olive oil producers, accusing Veronica Foods and its retailers of defaming the NAOOA and its members in North American Olive Oil Association v. D’Avolio et al., No. 16-cv-06986 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2016). The district court agreed with Defendants’ arguments that Veronica Foods’ “UP” mark was not misleading, and that the NAOOA had failed to state any facts supporting its contention that Veronica Foods’ advertisements disparaged the NAOOA or its members. Judge Feuerstein granted Veronica’s motion to dismiss with prejudice and without leave to amend. (Dkt. #70).
- Denial of Motions for Summary Judgment by Peter Thomas Roth.
GSLLP represented consumers in a case for fraud, false advertising, and unfair competition against prestige cosmetic company Peter Thomas Roth, based on false claims in its advertising for its Water Drench and Rose Stem Cell product lines in Kari Miller and Samantha Paulson v. Peter Thomas Roth LLC and Peter Thomas Roth Labs LLC, No. 19-cv-00698 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016). Noting the “helpful” expert reports submitted by plaintiffs’ expert Michael Pirrung, Ph.D., the district court held that plaintiffs had presented sufficient evidence of a proper jury question as to (i) whether hyaluronic acid absorbs 1,000 times its weight in water and (ii) whether the rose stem cell products help regenerate and repair human skin. Judge Alsup denied in relevant part both PTR’s motions for summary judgment. Miller v. Peter Thomas Roth, No. 19-cv-0698 (Dkt. #104).
- Certification of Nationwide Settlement Class.
GSLLP represented consumers in the first, or nearly the first, case to propose a methodology for establishing predominance in a nationwide class settlement after the Ninth Circuit’s decision in In re Hyundai and Kia Fuel Economy Litig., No. 15-65014 (9th Cir. Jan. 23, 2018). The district court accepted the methodology and certified a nationwide class where the class representatives were from a variety of states that collectively represented the variations among the laws of all states. Judge Seeborg granted final approval of the settlement. Koller v. Med Foods, Inc., No. 14-cv-02400-RS (Dkt. #169).
- Arbitration and Public Injunctive Relief.
GSLLP represented consumers in the first, or nearly the first, case to apply McGill v. Citibank, N.A., 2 Cal. 5th 945 (2017) to invalidate an arbitration agreement that contained a waiver of public injunctive relief. McArdle v. AT&T Mobility LLC, et al., Case No. CV-09-01117 (N.D. Cal) (Dkt. #287). This was also the first case to rule that AT&T's arbitration provision was invalid, after the U.S. Supreme Court had upheld the enforceability of that exact provision, on other grounds, in an earlier case. AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333 (2011) (examining class action waiver). The district court held in McArdle that, despite Concepcion, the McGill ruling was not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act, and it invalidated the arbitration agreement which purported to waive public injunctive relief in all forums.

- Pleading and Certification of Claims Where Product Quality Varies.

GSLLP represented consumers in two cases that were the first (or among the first) in the Northern District of California in which courts found that the named plaintiffs had standing, and then later, met the requirements for class certification, where the plaintiffs had alleged that some, but not necessarily all, of the products (olive oil) failed to meet the represented grade (extra virgin). In Koller v. Med Foods, et al., 3:14-cv-02400-RS (N.D. Cal. Jan. 6, 2015) (Dkt. #49), the defendant moved to dismiss based on its argument that the plaintiff lacked standing because he did not allege he tested the quality of the olive oil that he purchased and it was theoretically possible that the oil he purchased met the standard for extra virgin. The court rejected the argument, finding that “[i]n the event [plaintiff] is able to prove his allegations that the oil generally does not warrant that label because of its quality when first bottled and/or because of [defendant’s] packaging and handling practices, it would hardly be a defense that some bottles may nevertheless meet the minimum standards when purchased.” Id. at 6; see also Kumar v. Salov N. Am. Corp., No. 14-CV-2411-YGR, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12790, at *13 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2015) (denying dismissal based on standing and holding that “[w]hether some bottle of olive oil might not have degraded, despite the mixing, packaging, and shipping defects alleged, does not defeat the claim.”). The defendant in one of the cases raised similar unsuccessful arguments in opposition to certification. Koller v. Med Foods, Inc., No. 14-cv-02400-RS, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 141025, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 24, 2017) (finding common questions predominate and rejecting defendant’s argument that “putative class member only has claims if the specific bottle he or she purchased no longer met EVOO standards, and as a result, the liability inquiry is inherently individual and not subject to class-wide resolution”).

Appx. 359 (2009), apparently the first food labeling case decided in the Ninth Circuit, which affirmed that deceptive statements on a soda can were actionable if they motivated the purchase.

F. Trial Experience of Gutride Safier LLP Attorneys

This section summarizes the trial experience in class and complex litigation of the attorneys in GSLLP.

In March 2020, GSLLP attorneys Mr. Gutride, Mr. Safier, Ms. McCrary, and Mr. McCrary tried to the bench the case of Saliani, et al. v. Bay Area Toll Authority, et al., Case Nos. CGC-14-540384; CGC-15-549048; CGC-16-550947 (San Francisco County Superior Court). Plaintiffs alleged violations of the California Due Process Clause and California's consumer protection law related to unlawful penalties charged for toll invoices that were not received and the denial of administrative review.

While Mr. Gutride was a student at Yale Law School, he was a member of the trial team in a class action against the U.S. Government on behalf of Haitian refugees intercepted at sea and detained at the U.S. Naval Base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. That case, Haitian Centers Council, et al. v. Sale, 823 F. Supp. 1028 (E.D.N.Y. 1993), included an 11-day bench trial. Although Mr. Gutride was a junior member of the trial team, he conducted the direct examination of a U.S. Government contractor regarding the conditions at Guantanamo and objected to the cross-examination by the Assistant U.S. Attorney. Mr. Gutride also assisted in setting trial strategy and in drafting motions in limine and proposed findings of fact. Mr. Gutride travelled to Guantanamo to interview the clients and to negotiate with U.S. Government officials about conditions.

More recently, Mr. Gutride assisted in the jury trial in the case of Western MacArthur Co., et al. v. USF&G, Inc., Alameda County Super. Ct. Case No. 721595, an insurance coverage case that involved underlying claims by tens of thousands of injured persons. Mr. Gutride supervised the drafting of and argued all or substantially all the motions in limine. Mr. Gutride also supervised the culling and introduction into evidence of deposition testimony from dozens of witnesses, both by way of video recordings and live readings, as well as the evidentiary objections pertaining thereto. Mr. Gutride was present at trial each day and was involved in strategy regarding jury selection, expert testimony, and other issues. The trial, before Judge Bonnie Sabraw, lasted for six weeks before the case settled for more than $900 million.

In June 2016, Mr. Gutride and Mr. Safier tried to an arbitrator the case of McArdle v. AT&T, Inc., a case alleging that AT&T violated California's consumer protection statutes concerning the international roaming fees imposed on mobile phone subscribers for incoming calls that were not answered. The case was pled as a class action, and a motion for class certification was briefed, but Judge Claudia Wilken denied the motion without prejudice, ordered that the plaintiff arbitrate his individual claims and stayed the litigation pending arbitration.

Mr. Kennedy served on the trial teams on behalf of Google in Bright Response v. Google Inc., et al., Case No. 2:07-cv-00279 (E.D. Tex.) and Function Media, L.L.C. v. Google, Inc., et al., Case No. 2:07-cv-00371 (E.D. Tex.), which involved highly technical cases of patent infringement. In both cases, he and his team achieved complete jury verdicts of invalidity and non-infringement for Google. Mr. Kennedy prepared the expert and fact witnesses for direct and cross-examination, drafted the cross-examination of the inventor, drafted motions in limine and responses and objections to exhibits, made deposition designations, and drafted and assisted in the preparation of the closing statement.

Ms. McCrary was second-chair on the trial team in Freight Train Advertising, LLC v. Chicago Rail Link, L.L.C., Case No. 11-cv-2803 (N.D. Ill.), a contract and false representations case, in which both parties alleged breach of a multimillion-dollar contract involving outdoor advertising. The case proceeded to a bench trial at which Ms. McCrary conducted cross-examination and argued to the court.

Mr. McCrary served on the trial team in Adams v. Pilgrim's Pride Corp., No. 2:09-CV-397 (E.D. Tex.), a mass action involving thousands of poultry growers who brought federal antitrust claims under the Packer's and Stockyard's Act against Pilgrim's Pride Corporation, as well as claims under various state deceptive trade practices acts. The case proceeded in three separate trials, all to the bench. At the trials, Mr. McCrary cross-examined multiple adverse witnesses, made objections to opposing counsel's direct examinations, prepared motions for judgment as a matter of law, responded to a motion to strike the economics expert, and prepared trial briefs on various legal issues.
